

Learning from Digital Examinations

Brunel University London

Thursday April 26th 2018

An increasing number of institutions in the UK and elsewhere are adopting digital assessment for coursework and exams. This one-day conference builds on the workshop held at Brunel in March 2017, and is aimed at exploring the potential for digital assessment to shape assessment practices - can they help to make assessment a learning experience?

Program

Keynote Speakers

Dr Torben K Jensen, Aarhus University (confirmed)

Professor Denise Whitelock, Open University (confirmed)

Request for Contributions

We are inviting contributions on topics relating to assessment (examinations and coursework assignments) using a digital platform. In particular we welcome contributions on:

Administration of assessment

Experience of piloting digital exams – operational; staff and student experience

Changing assessment practices

Please submit a 100-word abstract and indicate your preference for presentation format: 15 min talk + 5 min Q&A

5 min speed-session, organised in groups of 3 with 15 min Q&A

Abstracts should be submitted to DigitalExams2018@brunel.ac.uk by 28 February 2018
